PRAYERS FAIL TO SAVE

Invocations of Volivans Failed to do Aught but Make Death Peaceful

TWO DIE DESPITE PRAYERS

Zion Leaders Pray for Deacon Pugh and Former Private Secretary to Dowie
Reece But Both Pass Away

Prayers alone failed to save two faithful Zion followers of prominence this week, even though Voliva himself was invoked. The two deaths.

Deacon O. C. Pugh died either of rattler bite or rusty nail wound in finger, would not submit to any treatment beyond ice packs for fever.

Oran Reece—Former Dowie private secretary, Voliva was deluged with telegrams and long distance messages Thursday and Friday to pray for Reece who was down in Texas.

The sudden death of Deacon O. C. Pugh of Zion City, the manager of the promotion department for Overseer Voliva, created great surprise in Zion City, created the cause of the death is shrouded in mystery, although it is believed that either a snake bite or blood poisoning from a rusty nail on June 10 was responsible.

While working in his garden Deacon Pugh was either bitten or ran a rusty nail into his finger while weeding a bed of strawberries. The pain was so intense and the deacon was unable to tell the symptoms of a rattler snake bite developed. The entire arm swelled to an enormous size and on last Sunday the clothing had to be cut from the arm.

Dr. N. J. LaRose, formerly health commissioner of Zion City, attended the stricken man, but no medicines were used and the only thing done to alleviate the pain was the use of ice packs to reduce the fever. Pugh insisted on "dying in the faith" as he had lived.

Deacon Pugh was one of the strongest and ablest supporters of Overseer Voliva and was a member of the cabinet and a former alderman. He was recently appointed manager of the newly organized promotion department. His death took place near 10 o'clock and it is reported to have been peaceful and the absence of severe suffering is believed by his friends to have resulted from the prayers of Overseer Voliva and the elders of the church.

Deacon Pugh was a member of the Zion City council previous to the last election and with ex-Aldermen Detienne claimed his seat in the council as a hold-over alderman. The quo warrant proceedings by which it is sought to oust three of the Independent members of the council will be heard by Judge Wright in the circuit court. In case the result should be that the three Independents were ousted from their offices in the council, Mr. Pugh would have claimed his seat as a hold over. The effect of his death will have a bearing on the proceedings to some extent, as he was a witness in the case.

Another death which caused much surprise in Zion City is that of Deacon Alex Reece, who was formerly John Alex Dowie's private secretary. Mr. Reece died in Mexico after an operation, but the cause of the death beyond that is not known at Zion. Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva was appealed to for prayer, but the divine aid did not arrive in time to save the life of the young man.

Reece accompanied Dr. Dowie to Mexico on the last trip there and resigned his position to accept one with a large Mexico business house. He recently visited Zion City and was apparently in the best of health.

Daysey Mayme's Genius.

Application has been made by Mrs. Lysander John Appleton to have Daysey Mayme installed in the chair of mathematics at the state university. "As a proof of the skill," she wrote in a letter to the board of regents, "she always keeps the scores for the duplicate bridge whist games, and when there is a prize no one questions her totals."—Aitchison Globe.

Misplaced Rapture.

To show the absurdity of Swedenborg's ideas, the preacher drew a graphic account of the supposed Swedenborgian heaven, with beautiful fields, fine horses, cows, etc. In the midst of his glowing description one of the sisters went into raptures, and shouted: "Glory, glory, glory!" "Hold on there, sister!" said the preacher, "you're shouting over the wrong heaven!"—Success Magazine.

MRS. W. VANPATTEN DEAD

Wife of Mailcarrier Van Patten Dies at Weslyan Hospital, Chicago

On Saturday morning of last week at the Wesleyan hospital in Chicago occurred a death that has caused profound sorrow in our village when Mrs. Wm. Van Patten passed away at that place. Her illness was only of a couple of weeks duration and from the very first her condition was known to be most critical and no hopes for her recovery were given to the family. However, in the hope that something might yet be done to save her life, she was taken to the hospital last Thursday morning where the best of care obtainable might be had, but to no avail, and she passed away on Saturday morning having been there but two days, uræmic poison being the cause.

Lillian Augusta Brown was born at Gages Corners on the 30th day of April, 1883, and passed away on the 11th day of June, 1910, just in the prime of her life at the age of 27 years and 11 days. Her entire life was spent in this community and on the 1st day of May, 1902, she was united in marriage to William E. Van Patten and since that time her home has been in the village of Antioch with the exception of a year when they resided at Lake Villa. While living at that place she joined the Royal Neighbors and was still a member of Cedar Lake Camp at the time of her death.

The remains were brought here Saturday evening and the funeral services were held at the M. E. church Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. F. R. McNamer officiating, and with both the Antioch and Lake Villa Royal Neighbors attending in a body, Cedar Lake Camp having charge of the services at the grave.

The church was packed to its limit with those who came to pay respect to the memory of the young woman whom they had known as a trusted companion and a true and loving friend. The attendance is said to have been the largest at any funeral ever held in Antioch. The floral tributes were most beautiful and were of so large a number that the services of eight flower bearers were required to carry the larger pieces to the cemetery.

By her death Cedar Lake Camp has lost one of its most devoted members and a kind and loving mother has been taken from a home.

Besides her husband and little son Lawrence, aged five years, she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Jas. Barnstable, of Lake Villa, two brothers, Jas. Brown of Libertyville and Ed Brown of Round Lake and six sisters, Mrs. Wm. Pester of Grayslake, Mrs. Guy Hook of Round Lake, Mrs. Earl Thompson of Grayslake, Mrs. Lee Gilbert of Libertyville, Mrs. Sidney Barnstable and Miss Jennie Brown of Lake Villa.

The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved family.

ELGIN TO LAKES CHANNEL IS TALK OF MOTOR CLUB

Financing of the long dreamed of river way for Elgin to the lakes has been undertaken by the combined forces of the Elgin Commercial club and motor boat enthusiasts all along the line and it is confidently predicated that the project will be completed this summer. The plan involves the building of locks at the intervening dams and the dredging of the river channel at all shallow places, making it possible for the largest motor boats on the river to make the entire trip to the fishing banks without difficulty. The cost of carrying out the scheme will be about $5,000 and its declared that there will be no great difficulty in raising the money. Motor boat enthusiasts are elated and confidently expect that over-Sunday trips to the lake will be an ordinary occurrence before the close of the season. Launch owners at the lakes and at all the intervening towns have fallen into line with the same zeal.

The Shortest Town Meeting.

Presque Isle, in Maine, thinks it has the record of holding the shortest town meeting ever known. A special town meeting was called to vote additional money for highways. The meeting was called to order, warrant read, moderator chosen, article passed over and meeting adjourned in less than ten minutes.

The Beginning.

"A good start is important in telling a story," "Yes," replied the author; "but my next book is secure on that score. I have a special cover design by a leading artist."

ROB THE ANTIOCH DEPOT

Thieves Force an Entrance
Through Window and Loot the Safe

GET TICKETS BUT NO CASH

Hole Nearly a Foot Square Blown in Safe
Door—Robbers Also Force Open
Trunk in Baggage Room

When Jesse King, who was looking for a ride to Trevor made an early trip to the Soo Line depot at this place Tuesday morning he found that Station Agent Kuhaup was not there that the depot was unlocked. Upon investigating the lad found that the place had been broken into and he at once summoned Mr. Kuhaup.

Upon his arrival he discovered that at some time during the night thieves had entered the place and proceeded to loot the safe. Two holes were drilled in the safe door and an explosive of some kind was used to force it open. The force of the explosion tipped the safe over leaving the door on top and in this was blown a hole about 8 by 12 inches.

The thieves then prepared to make a haul but found that Mr. Kuhaup had removed the money from the depot the previous evening and that therefore there was no cash left to reward them for their trouble. However, in lieu of the cash, they appropriated six railroad tickets, four 54-ride, one 10-ride and one 25-ride.

From the main room they passed on into the baggage room and forced open a trunk belonging to Mrs. Forbrich. A case of beer belonging to Geo. Simons was opened and thirteen bottles were taken. A crate of pineapples belonging to Frank Savage was also opened and several were taken out.

The gum machine was completely demolished, the pennies taken out and the gum scattered about the floor of the waiting room.

When Mr. Kuhaup left the depot at 9:45 Monday evening there were no suspicious characters to be seen in the neighborhood and neither had any been noticed hanging about during the day or dismounting from any of the trains and it is therefore supposed that the thief or thieves made their visit here in an auto and after completing the job left out in the same manner. No clews were left behind and no trace of them has as yet been found.

An entrance to the depot was gained by prying open the window on the east side. Considerable force must have been used in raising this window for, although the glass was not even cracked, the lock was broken.

The force of the explosion was heavy enough to shatter the globes of the lanterns, but on account of the distance of the depot from any other building it was heard by no one.

A similar attempt to rob the Antioch depot was made six or seven years ago, but in that case the thieves were rewarded by securing only a few pennies and nickels.

Later in the day the section gang found all of the tickets, with the exception of the one 25-ride ticket, on the hill south of the depot.

"Measure for Measure."

Country Editor—"Billy, run over to the store and ask Mr. Krump for the loan of his peck measure for a short time." New Office Boy—"Yes, sir; but what'll I say you want it for—'he's sure to ask me?" Country Editor—"Well, the fact is that Silas Skinfitt is due here in half an hour to renew his subscription with two bushels of apples and—well, I know Silas of old!"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Disregarding the Rules.

"You are suspended!" thundered Prof. Preston Yellers of the school of Journalism. "What is my offense?" inquired the student. "You have violated one of the first rules of modern sensationalism. You wrote an item about an elopement without referring to the girl as a beautiful society young lady."

The Mistake of a Comma.

This instance of what a mistake of a comma can produce has been noticed: "Lord Palmerston then entered upon his head, a white hat upon his feet, large but well-polished boots upon his brow, a dark cloud in his hand, his faithful walking stick in his eye, a dark menacing glare saying nothing."—The Circle.

ROOSEVELT INVITED TO WAUKEGAN

Wireless Message Sent Returning Traveler on Board
Ship Victoria

COMMITTEE WIDE - AWAKE

Waukegan Preparing to Celebrate on a More Extensive Scale This Year Than in Any Previous Year

Chairman Dobson of the publicity committee of the Waukegan Day management, Wednesday drafted the first wireless message of public import that has ever left Waukegan to invite the greatest American private citizen to be Waukegan's guest on June 27. The message reads: "Theodore Roosevelt, aboard Kaiserin Augusta Victoria via Long Island. We invite you to Waukegan Day celebration June 27th; great gathering; we know you'd like Waukegan; will you come; answer our expense. Waukegan Day Committee."

The message was filed in the office of the Postal Telegraph & Cable company Wednesday and sent at once to the Long Island station of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph company where it will speed on its way to the Victoria, on which the colonel is a passenger, or may be filed to await its turn with hundreds of other messages.

There is little chance of Roosevelt being able to come to Waukegan but because of the possibility that he is coming to Chicago about that time, it is felt such an invitation might get results, especially if Teddy hears what a great time Waukegan is to have on the 27th and the rest of the week. At least, it will show to him that Waukegan is on the map and alive to the situation and at that, it is a nice recognition for the former president to receive such an invitation, even though he may not accept.

This effort to induce the former president of the United States to attend the annual Waukegan Day celebration gives evidence to the fact that the committee in charge are doing all in their power to make the celebration of this year surpass any of previous years, and even should Mr. Roosevelt see fit to decline the invitation the affair will still be one grand success. And should he decide to accept few Lake County people would be willing to remain away, and Waukegan will be called upon to entertain the largest crowd it has had in years.

Shoes.

The better the shoes, it seems, the less the people walk. American shoe manufacturers have made an epoch in commerce, for American shoes are copied and imitated all over the civilized world as the best output of all nations. Yet the typical American will not walk and so is the easiest man on his shoes that ever lived.—New York Press.

CON. MARBLE OUSTED COUNTY BOARD MEETING

Fox Lake Commercial Club Takes Radical
Action on Member

Residents of Fox Lake resented published reports of conditions in the summer resort city fifty miles north of Chicago at a meeting called by the Fox Lake Commercial club Monday night, and removed from office a man they accused of being responsible for the publicity. The reports had told of gambling and immoral conditions alleged to exist in the city.

Mayor John Brown in an address declared he would pay $100 to anyone proving a blind pig existed in Fox Lake, stated it was impossible to keep out all objectionable people from a summer resort, but that while he knew they had been a slot machines operated recently, none were in the city now.

Converse Marble was the man removed from office. He was a vice president of the club, and the forty members present asked for his resignation by unanimous vote. He tendered it at once. He has been prominent in a fight on slot machines, having been identified with a raid by Sheriff Griffin of Lake County in which some were seized a short time ago and being prominent in others last year.

Mayor J. Brown headed a committee of villagers on a visit to Chicago Tuesday to protest against the charges made in Monday's Tribune. The committee included J. S. Diener, C. F. Padeloup and George M. Maypole.

HADDICAN-MACKIN WEDDING WEDNESDAY

Wednesday morning at nine o'clock at the Catholic church at Bristol occurred the wedding of Miss Catherine Haddican of that place to Mr. Jos. Mackin of Kirkland, Arizona, with Rev. Father Heller performing the ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Haddican and her entire life has been spent in the vicinity of Bristol, and is a prime favorite among the younger set who, while they sincerely regret that she is to leave their midst, are sending with her best wishes for a most bright and happy future.

The groom is a well known and enterprising young man with a large number of friends in this vicinity, of which he was a former resident. For some time past he has resided in Arizona, where he is extensively engaged in the mining industry.

Many beautiful presents, both useful and ornamental were showered upon the bride by the friends who are loth to see her leave.

Mr. and Mrs. Mackin will leave at once for their future home in the west.

The News unites with their large circle of friends in extending congratulations to the happy couple.

SWINDLING NURSEY AGENT THE LATEST

J. A. Delaney, known to many in and about Harvard as a salesman for the Arthur Bryan & Sons nursery at Princeton, Ill., was arrested at Nunda on Tuesday forenoon on complaint of the nursery firm for defrauding them. The arrest was made by C. N. Moore, a postoffice inspector, detailed from the Chicago office, who came to Harvard on Saturday night and obtained information relating to Delaney and operations here.

Delaney's methods were unique. In March last he entered the employ of Brayan & Sons as a salesman in northern Illinois, but the base of his principal operations have been at Harvard, Peal City, Barrington and Desplaines. Going to a city or village he would remain a few days, fill out order blanks, make weekly reports to the nursery firm, write them in detail of how much business he was securing and send in his bill weekly for the salary and commission he was to receive.

COUNTY BOARD MEETING

Young & Company Withdraw
From Auditing of the County Books

"GO AFTER" MILLIONAIRES

Proceedings of Board are to be Published
After Each Meeting and Not Annually
as Heretofore

Tuesday was an exciting day around the court in Waukegan due to the action of the board the previous day in expunging the proceedings in regard to Young & Company at a previous meeting from the records, leaving the company without a contract or agreement in regard to the county book audit, the company withdrew its two auditors from the county treasurer's office and await further action.

Features of the meeting of the supervisors were the fight on the amendment to rule 9, to make it accord with the statutes so that supervisors' meetings proceedings will be published after each meeting instead of annually and the authorization of State's Attorney Dady to go ahead and start suit if necessary against George H. Holt, Lake Forest millionaire, to collect his personal property and other taxes.

Hearing in the matter of county aid for a bridge in Vernon was continued.

The annual report of Superintendent Appley of the county farm was referred to the poor farm committee. It shows twenty-two sane males and nine sane females and fourteen each insane males and females as inmates. This makes a total of fifty-nine. The county farm is not self-supporting.

Recommendation was made to retain Appley at the same salary. He is a very competent official who has served all told forty years in the same post, ten years as assistant and thirty years as superintendent.

The board reconsidered its action at the previous meeting in deeding the swamp lands in Antioch to John Bohrn and referred to the swamp lands committee with the authorization of the clerk and chairman to make the deeds if the deal is O.K.'d by the committee. The land is in 11-46-9 and is involved in the famous Davis will contest.

On the milk pasteurization and tuberculosis test aid committee for Speaker Shurtieff, so titled completely in the News, the correct list of three appointed to posts on the committee of twenty-four is: Ralph Chittenden at Gurnee, Ray Paddock of Round Lake and C. G. Small of Rockefeller.

The board is considering the striking out of the word "annually" from rule nine providing for the publication of the board proceedings and inserting "in accordance with the statute" which means that the proceedings of every meeting will be published immediately after it instead of the customary annual proceedings.

At the afternoon session Wednesday a motion prevailed to advertise for bids for publishing the proceeding of conclusion of each meeting of the board in brief form, and providing for a detailed publication once each year.

It was moved and carried to advertise for bids for a county doctor, same to be presented to the board in sufficient time to allow of contract being let at this session. Dr. Brown, who at present holds the position, was asked to come before the board and tell of his work for the year. In brief the doctor explained that he had cared for 152 cases, had paid out $953 and had put in the hospital at his own expense fourteen operative cases. He declared not a single death had occurred during the year among the poor patients he had attended. He then referred to particular cases and answered queries of the board members.

Only Real Conquests.

The only conquests that cause no regrets are those made over hatred.—Napoleon.

Turkey Put Up Good Fight.

An artist was sketching in a field when a full-grown turkey approached. He tried to frighten it away and it immediately struck its beak into his face. It then destroyed his sketch and, although he kicked it again and again, aimed continuous blows with its beak at his eyes. He was thoroughly exhausted before his cries for help brought a golfing party and a farmhand on the scene.

SYNOPSIS.

Andy Meelen, aged millionaire miner, is dying and orders a will drawn up leaving all his property to the son of a sister, of whom he has heard nothing for years, and whose married name he does not know. Meelen was married years before, but left his wife after a quarrel, in which he struck her. He learned later that she and their daughter were dead. The scene shifts to New York, introducing Wilfrid Stennis, who is telling his fiancée, Eunice Trevecca, what he would do if he were the possessor of wealth. In the law office of Carboy, Passavant & Cozine, attorneys for the estate of Meelen, Roger Howe reports the result of his search for heirs of Meelen. He concludes the fact that he has discovered that Meelen's daughter is living. Wilfrid Stennis replies to an advertisement for information concerning his dead mother, Martha Meelen, and is told that he is the heir to Andy Meelen's millions.

"You see you were right, after all, dearest," said Wilfrid to Eunice after imparting to her in detail his wonderful news; "it was uncle Andrew!"

He had gone to her at once, feeling that he must confide in somebody or his brain would burst. And who so willing a listener as the girl of his heart?

The winter twilight was shutting in; old Trevecca was not yet come home; the lamp was still unlighted, and they twain had the shabby parlor to themselves.

Eunice ignored the passing tribute to her superior insight. Her woman's vision was leaping far ahead, and although the affianced couple sat hand in hand, and Wilfrid was the same dear, unaffected fellow as of yore, tenderly affectionate and lover-like, Eunice felt the intangible and impending shadow of a new element in their relations. But she could not as yet define it or put her thoughts into words. She must thresh it out by herself. For neither had there as yet been sufficient time to fully adjust themselves to the novel situation.

"I'm so glad, for your sake, Wilfrid," she answered; "it is what you have always wished. Do you remember our talk in this very room a little while ago, and the wonderful air-castles you planned?" Wilfrid chuckled boyishly. "Now you can chuck ahead and build them all!"

"Rather say that we'll build them together!" he exclaimed loyally. "What's mine is yours, you know." He meant every word he said, but Eunice shook her head.

"What does that mean?" inquired Wilfrid, drawing her to him so that her head nestled on his shoulder. "Do you imagine that any amount of money can make any difference in my love for you? Why, my Eunice is worth a dozen fortunes!"

The girl suffered his caresses, and it was inexpressibly sweet to hear him talk in that strain, but there was an ominous tugging at her heartstrings. However, she would not play the part of a kill-joy at such a time.

"Thank you, Wilfrid," she said simply. "I know you mean it, and it is very dear and lovely of you to come to me first of all with the good news. I want you always to remember this, Wilfrid—that whatever happens my love for you can never, never change!"

"Nothing's going to come between us, anyway!" affirmed Wilfrid confidently, sealing his words with a kiss, and stifling her negative. Before Eunice could make any further reply John Trevecca came in, and the wonderful tale had to be gone over again for his especial benefit.

"Eh, lad, but it's a mort o' money! Whatever will 'ee do wi' it?"

Wilfrid laughed gayly. "Why, Eunice and I are going to build castles with some of it."

"And which one will 'ee live in?" queried the old man, taking him literally.

"Let me tell you one thing," said the impulsive Wilfrid; "wherever we are, you are going to be with us and share our good fortune."

"Nay, nay, lad. It's kindly meant, and I thank ye; but a million a year! I couldn't live up to it at my age! I'll just bide here."

It was characteristic of the simple nature of young Stennis that he went to his desk downtown the next morning, as though nothing had happened overnight. In fact, on waking he found it almost impossible to realize his changed position. To his boarding-house the news had not yet penetrated, but when he arrived at the store he found the tidings ahead of him. Most of the morning dallies had more or less lengthy accounts, for Horatio Passavant had sent for the reporters, apparently creating the impression that the newly-fledged mil-lonaire was under his protecting wing. The head of Stennis' firm came to his desk at the instant he was opening the big ledger as usual.

"We certainly did not expect to see you here this morning, Mr. Stennis. Let me congratulate you most heartily! Of course, you'll be leaving us soon?"

"Yes, I suppose so," answered Wilfrid, blushing and embarrassed. "But you see, sir, I haven't had time to get used to the thing yet, and if you don't mind I should like to hang on here for awhile, anyhow."

"Certainly—just as you please." The elder man could appreciate the lad's feelings. Not so his fellow employees, who all that day and for the few days that Wilfrid did remain at his old post seemed lost in amazement that any fellow with a million dollars a year coming in should want to work at all.

But, naturally, the hour came around when Wilfrid Stennis balanced his final column of figures, and hung up his threadbare office-coat for the last time. Gradually his mind adjusted itself to the new state of affairs, but the circumstance that helped most to bring him to his bearings was the announcement by Mr. Carboy that there stood to his credit in the Chemical bank a deposit of half a million dollars "just for present needs," the lawyer at the same time handing him a bank-book and a check-book. Then, and then only, Wilfrid Stennis felt that he had really come into his kingdom.

At once he did something for which he always thanked his good angel in after years. He rode uptown to Tiffany's, and selecting for Eunice a marquise ring composed of opals and diamonds, drew his first check to pay for it—a check that ran into four fat figures.

"It's the first of the money I've touched, dearest," he said as he placed the ring on her finger above the little engagement token she already wore. All tears and happy smiles, the girl threw her arms about his neck, exclaiming:

"Nothing you could have done would have pleased me more, you dear, thoughtful fellow! It is far too handsome for me, but I shall always love it and wear it."

In the ensuing early days Wilfrid was more than a little perplexed as to what changes he should make in his mode of life. He soon discovered what was evidently expected of him through an avalanche of circulars from house-agents, tailors, haberdashers, florists, cigar and wine merchants, picture-dealers, horse-marts, and carriage manufacturers, all bespeaking his custom and patronage, to say nothing of begging letters by the gross. Even a so-called College of Heraldry offered to furnish a crest and a coat of arms—for a stiff consideration in cash.

"He Will Do," Thought Clara Passavant.

His boarding-house became simply unendurable on this account and because of the notoriety he had already gained. So by Eunice's advice he went to a good hotel, "until he could settle himself in a suitable suite of bachelor apartments," she added.

"But what do I want with a bachelor apartment?" he asked in wonder. "What I would like to do is to get married at once, and then we can look about for a proper house."

To this proposition she demurred resolutely, nor could he dislodge her. The utmost concession he found it possible to extort was that she would marry him in a year from that time—if he asked her. Pleased for a reason, she at first sheltered herself behind the feminine "because," but, driven into a corner at last, said that she wished him to enjoy his freedom under the new conditions; that he must go into gay society and see the world; she would not think of tying him down—and much more to the same effect.

Finding the girl immovable, and, moreover, tacitly confirmed in her decision by wise old John Trevecca, Wilfrid rather ruefully took her counsel as to the bachelor suite. In the selection of this and many other necessary adjuncts to his new environment he found Mr. Passavant's advice of great assistance, Phineas Carboy having returned to San Francisco.

"Everything depends upon the manner in which you start out, my dear boy," said his portly mentor with a return to the paternal manner. "In your position you cannot afford to ally yourself with anything but the very best, from your shoemaker to your visiting-list. You must have a man, of course, and a secretary; send the applicants to me; I will sift them for you. You should have at least two equipages for town use—a handsome and a brougham, with suitable horses for saddle and harness. Do you ride or drive, Mr. Stennis?"

No, Mr. Stennis neither rode nor drove; in fact, he knew or cared very little about horses.

"Ah, then, there my daughter can be of service; she is accounted a very fine horsewoman and one of the best judges of horseflesh in the city. But you young people can talk that over together. You will naturally take an interest in all gentlemanly sports—every man of means and leisure does; but it will do no harm if you are positively identified with some particular pastime, even to the extent of making it a fad. May I inquire what is your favorite diversion?"

"Yachting, by all means," said Wilfrid.

"Excellent! Could not be better!" exclaimed Mr. Passavant. "None but a man of large resources can—ah—indulge in yachting to any extent."

"I am thinking of building a boat," said Wilfrid diffidently. "What would you advise?"

"The very thing, my boy; engage the most expensive designer and the most famous builder, and your reputation is made. An excellent notion—ah!"

"Really, my dear," said the lawyer in narrating this little Chesterfieldian episode to Clara, "I begin to have hopes of young Stennis; he is most tractable and receptive to—ah—sensible ideas."

So it came about that the rather blase Clara anticipated with no little interest her first meeting with the new man.

Stennis had never before owned a visiting-card or donned a dresscoat, but when he stepped forward to greet her, in response to her father's introduction, as he entered the drawing-room, she decided in one sweeping glance that he was irreproachable at least in costume and manners, even if the latter were a trifle nervous. At the proper moment he offered his arm to take her in to dinner. Inwardly he was greatly perturbed, for he realized that he was on view; but Clara Passavant excelled in social tact, and, taking a liking to him from the start, before the soup was removed he was chatting with her completely at his ease. The dinner passed off quite successfully on the whole, for by dint of keeping a careful watch on what the others did he was able to avoid any glaring blunders, albeit rather bewildered at the multiplicity of glasses, and wondering at the possible correct uses of the different styles and sizes of knives and forks and spoons. But he committed no solecisms; he took wine sparingly; his little errors might even have been ascribed to a somewhat different geographical environment by those not cognizant of his social pedigree.

"He will do!" thought Clara Passavant, and put forth all her mature powers to fascinate and dazzle her father's guest—in which aim she completely succeeded, for there is nothing more dangerous to a young man's peace of mind than a beautiful, well-gowned, and well-mannered woman of the world in full evening attire. And Clara was all of these things. Moreover, she could be engagingly gracious when she chose—and from this night on she did choose.

She found Wilfrid quickly and even cleverly responsive to the touch-and-go topics of current conversation and remarkably well-informed as to general knowledge. In truth, he was a better-educated man than her father, so far as wide and desultory reading was concerned; he had been nicknamed "the walking encyclopedia" in the old days of office and boarding-house life. Yet his mental bill-of-fare was like a "picked-up" dinner—it contained a little of everything. But if he had only known it in those early days as he came to know it later, socially this was rather in his favor than otherwise. Society, with a capital prefix, prefers to be amused rather than instructed, and barely tolerates the man who knows enough to see its blunders and not enough to keep still about them.

A Fresh Start.

A girl came in and sat in front of them at the play, she and her escort. "What a lovely profile," said he. "Beautiful! Delicate little upturned nose, small mouth, deep, pretty eyes. Isn't she beautiful, beautiful!"

"Beautiful," said she, "but not half so much so as the man she is with. Isn't he the handsomest chap you ever saw? Look at his color, his mustache, his lovely head of hair. So many men are bald or beginning to be bald. I do love to see a fine head of hair on a man."

"You know," he whimpered, "it always makes me sore to speak of people beginning to be bald, and you know why."

"Will you let up on the pretty profile if I cut out the bald head?" she asked.

"Yes," said he.

"All right," said she.

The Unique Rat.

From letters received it would seem possible to make out quite a case for the rat. Not only has he served as food—Dr. Kane on his polar expedition attributed his comparative immunity to scurvy to the soup made from the rats his servant shot with a bow and arrow—but Mr. Frank Buckland has suggested that their skins are eminently suitable for glove-making. At any rate, rat skins have sometimes been used as clothing, for we read of a lady at Glasgow who had a pair of shoes of rat skins, which were as soft as the finest kid, while by way of a freak a complete suit of rat skin was once made by a Cornish miner.

POSTAL BANK BILL IS PASSED

HOUSE ADOPTS MEASURE BY A VOTE OF 195 TO 101.

Last of Taft's Proposed Acts Goes to Senate for Concurrence—Democrats Split.

Washington.—With the Republican side a unit and the Democratic lines broken in twain the postal savings bank bill was passed by the house Thursday by a vote of 195 to 101.

This is the last of the president's legislative measures to have to pass the house at this session—the last, at least, that the president will insist on. The house has now passed the railroad bill, the statehood bill and the conservation bill. The injunction bill will be permitted to slumber in committee, the president having told house leaders he will not insist on it.

From now until adjournment the house will mark time, while the senate completes its work and the conferees get together on bills on which the house and senate disagree. The general deficiency appropriation and the public buildings bills can be brought out and passed at short notice. Neither will be the subject of general attack.

Whether the postal savings bank bill as it passed the house will have to go to conference is uncertain. The president approves the house bill, which is a substitute for the senate measure. Senator Borah, who was one of the most active of the Republicans in framing the senate bill, has told the president that there is a chance of the senate accepting the house bill.

ANGRY CROWDS STONE GIRL

Drive Daughter of Governor Haskell From Guthrie Streets, Resenting Transfer of State Capital.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—In a wild automobile drive in the midnight hours Saturday, the seal of the state of Oklahoma was brought from Guthrie to Oklahoma City, following the announcement that Oklahoma City won in the state capital fight by a majority of more than fifty thousand votes over Guthrie and Shawnee, Oklahoma City probably will be proclaimed the state capital.

The seal was surreptitiously removed from the secretary of state's office and is now declared to be in the rooms of Governor Haskell at the Lee Hotel.

Jane Haskell, 17-year-old daughter of Governor Haskell, was hooted and stoned from the streets of Guthrie Saturday night, when she started for Oklahoma City, and was forced to flee to the governor's rooms in the Royal hotel with her escort. She came to Oklahoma City on the first train.

Western Union Is Indicted.

Washington.—Forty-two counts charging the Western Union Telegraph company with an equal number of violations of the bucketshop law of March 1, 1909, were contained in an indictment returned here Friday by the federal jury.

The indictments are based on a fast wire service alleged to have been supplied by the telegraph company to the Standard Stock and Grain Dealers of Jersey City.

THINK CHARLTON WAS SLAIN

Italian Police Convinced American Was Murdered at Same Time Wife Was Killed.

Como, Italy.—Search for Porter Charlton alive has practically been abandoned by the Italian police. They are now bending every effort to find the dead body of the man they believe was slain with his wife, whose body was found Thursday huddled in a trunk in the bottom of Lake Como.

The amount of blood which saturated the mattress, sheets and curtains of the bed in the sleeping room of the villa which was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charlton, could not possibly have come from one body, that of Mrs. Charlton, the police assert. Their belief that a double murder was committed, probably by a former admirer of the woman, is shared by the American consul at Milan, Charles M. Caughy, who is investigating the case.

Mrs. Charlton was Mrs. Mary Scott Castle, daughter of H. H. Scott of San Francisco, the divorced wife of a wealthy San Francisco lawyer, and was married to Charlton on March 12 last in Philadelphia.

She is the woman who achieved great notoriety a little over a year ago by shooting at William B. Craig, a New York lawyer, in the corridor of the Waldorf Astoria.

The couple were spending their honeymoon here and occupied a villa on the shore of the lake. They were known as Mr. and Mrs. Porter. They had also gone under the name, it was learned of Mr. and Mrs. Porter Charlton.

Three days ago the couple disappeared, and were not seen again.

CLOSE TO MAN "HIGHER UP"

Fisherman Is Star Witness in Bribe Cases—More Charges Filed Against Lorimer.

Springfield, Ill.—Charles Cole, a fisherman from Beardstown, was the star witness before the grand jury Wednesday and as a result of his testimony State's Attorney Burke is another step closer to the man "higher up" in the legislative bribery cases.

Aside from being a contributor to the "jack-pot" to the extent of $100, Cole is the possessor of numerous details concerning the manner in which it was collected, by whom the money went. He declared that he told the grand jury everything he knew about the "jack-pot."

Washington.—Senator Cullom Wednesday presented to the senate another memorial with respect to the election of Senator Lorimer to the senate from Illinois. This latest request for an investigation is signed by Jerome R. King of Chicago.

Mr. King asserts that Senator Lorimer was elected by a "combination of renegade Republicans and dishonest Democrats" in violation of the letter and spirit of the primary law.

The WOOL INDUSTRY in THE AMERICAS

LOADED LLAMAS IN THE PERUVIAN HIGHLANDS

SPINNING WHEEL

MAN'S first clothing was an animal pelt, and without doubt a sheep pelt. It may be suggested that the fig leaf antedates the sheepskin as an article of wear. This may be true, but the fig leaf can be considered only as a temporary expedient which was discarded with the first cool winds which swept Mesopotamian lowlands.

The pelt or the wool plucked from it was the principal man from before the dawn of time almost to the present. Both made from vegetable spally cotton, has a more than wool. But this does not cotton and linen are wool as an article of human use. Far from it; the use of wool has advanced by enormous steps in the last few centuries. The fact that the supply of wool to meet the demand for clothing must perforce wear out fibers or go unclothed. The fact is true of the product of wool; the supply can never demand. Cotton, of course, is a new field of the unclothed races of the world. In addition it has supplied the ancestors wore but little wool. The European of today does not wear less wool than he wears more, but he has more articles of clothing, for the most part, are cotton. It is a close parallel all over the world, but there are some differences as well.

It rarely happened and can happen again that cattle will be raised primarily for their hides, but the raising of their wool is one of the well-known steps in the industry. It is that this can be done so as to handsome profit that built up sheep industries in the west of the United States, in New Zealand, in South Africa and now in South America. Free cheap pasture is the fundamental condition for this kind of raising. Were it not for these conditions, where the cost of feeding is nominal, the price of wool would advance to a point where wool would be beyond the means of the very rich. Sheep is a profitable industry in England, Germany, or the eastern half of the United States, not because of wool, but because of mutton. The fleece is a by-product, just as the milk of the dairy cow is a by-product. The principal value of the animal is in the mutton. In the new sheep centers of South America the principal value of the animal is in the wool, and fortunes were made from the even when not a pound of mutton was sold.

Wool, as the word is used in commerce, is the product alone of the sheep. It may be that it comes from the backs of several varieties of goats, from the camel, the guanaco, the vicuña, or the llama, as well as from the sheep. It is the thing itself, not the zoological classification of the animal which determines whether the fiber is hair, or fur. Since the classification is not scientific the line between the three classes is necessarily vague and distinct. For instance, the under covering of a camel may be camel's wool or camel's hair, and so we have alpaca hair or alpaca wool. From the sheep there are many varieties of wool, long and short, straight and curly, coarse and fine, and what is generally more important than any of these, varieties in the crimps or imbrications appearing on the face of the fibers.

It is important in considering wool as a commercial commodity to keep in mind the fact that there are different kinds of cloth made therefrom. These are commercially known in English as woolsens, and worsteds. The processes in making these three kinds of cloth are so different as to make them entirely different industries, employing entirely different machinery. Felt is made from the wool or fur in which the cloth holding because of the lock of the imbricated fiber. Woolsens and worsteds are spun from threads, but the threads in the two kinds of cloth are prepared in a different manner, and the weaving is entirely unlike. Formerly, entirely different kinds of wools were used for making the two kinds of cloth, or rather it is more accurate to say that only certain kinds of wools could be used in making worsteds. Almost any kind of wool could be used for making woolsens, although some were much more suitable than others, and, as a rule, those least suitable for woolsens were best suitable for worsteds. In effect, therefore, certain wools were used for woolsens and certain other wools for worsteds. With the improved modern machinery used in worsted mills these limitations are fading away, so that worsteds can now be made from wools formerly not used for this purpose.

The wool used for making woolsens is carded; that for worsteds is combed. The effect of these two processes is that in the first the wool fibers are crossed and interlocked as much as possible, and in the second they are drawn out to be parallel, as in cotton or linen. Woolen yarns, although hard-spun, look and feel light and fluffy. Worsted yarns appear finer and stronger.

The weaving of the two kinds of cloth is not unlike, at least not to the unskilled observer, except in one particular, and this is a most important one—woolens are tilled and worsteds are not. The fulling of the cloth, accomplished by heat, moisture and pressure, brings together and interlocks, by means of the imbrication of the fiber, the several threads entering into the cloth into a more or less felted whole. The cloth shrinks, sometimes as much as one-half, and in such material, as for instance the so-called doeskins and broadcloths, it appears and feels like felt.

It is this process of semifelted cloth, made possible by the peculiar life of the fibers in the yarn, that distinguishes woolens from worsteds. Formerly, entirely different classes of wool were used in the two cloths—for woolens, the short-staple, highly imbricated carding wool, merino for example; and for the worsteds the long-staple, slightly imbricated or smooth combed wools. By modern machinery it is possible now to use the short-staple wools in making worsteds.

In practice the raw wool, after being washed and scoured, is subjected to a series of combing processes, in each of which the particular fibers suitable for a certain purpose are extracted. The residue after each combing is called a waste, although its value per pound may have been augmented by the extraction of the lower-priced fibers.

According to United States census reports, manufactures of wool rank tenth in the list of American industries. The total capital invested was $310,179,749 and with an output valued at $206,990,484 a year. In the classification adopted the manufacture of clothing is not included. Since 1900 there has been an enormous increase in the wool manufacturing industry, principally in the manufacture of worsteds. At the same census the number of sheep in the United States was 39,852,967. Since then there has been a 43 per cent. increase in the number of sheep, as appears by a report issued by the census office on January 1, 1910, which shows 57,216,000 sheep in the country at the present time. These are valued at an average of $4.08, giving a total value of $233,044,000. By the census of 1900 the country produced 276,567,584 pounds of sheep's wool and 961,328 pounds of mohair and goat hair. Estimating the same average clip of wool as at that time, the production of the country at the present should be about 400,000,000 pounds of wool. In reality it should be greater, on account of the improvement in sheep breeding.

There are several hundred varieties of sheep both in the domestic and in the wild breeds. The former have been under the dominion of man since before the dawn of history. Whether these are derived from any one of the existing wild species, or from the crossing of several or from some now extinct species is a matter of conjecture even to scientists. Variations in the different domestic breeds are very great and in no other particular greater than in the wool. Domestic sheep, not considering the Asiatic breeds, may be classed under two heads—the Spanish and the British breeds. The Spanish breed is the Merino, which has modified more or less the sheep of all Europe, including the British islands, North and South America, South Africa and Australia. The Merino has a very characteristic appearance, which easily distinguishes him from other breeds. He has a thick covering of wool over the forehead and cheeks, his horns are large, pendent and convoluted laterally. The wool is long, soft, and twisted into silky looking spiral ringlets. The wool fibers are highly imbricated and possess in the highest degree fine felting qualities. The origin of the Spanish Merino is not very well known, but the breed is known to have as a foundation the original breed introduced into the Peninsula by the Romans upon which was crossed certain English sheep, most probably the Leicester or Lincoln sheep.

Up to the time of the Napoleonic wars, the position of Spain in the wool trade was at the head. Spanish wool went all over the civilized world and enjoyed a reputation for being the best. However, the peninsular wars, with the attendant evils following thereon, had a most disastrous effect on the wool trade of Spain and produced a depreciation in its quality and a consequent loss in exportation for the wool of the famous breed.

Spanish Merinos were taken to Hungary in 1776 and to France one year later—the most famous French Merino is the Rambouillet. Spanish Merinos were first brought to Rambouillet by Daubenton in 1782, and from this first importation the breed was developed. It is now known all over the world as one of the best of the Merino strains. Spanish Merinos were brought to the United States in the early colonial days, but the breed was lost in a promiscuous crossing with the earlier imported British breeds. The first Spanish Merinos whose descendants have been kept pure were brought to the United States in 1802.

Merinos were taken to the Spanish-American colonies almost with the first colonists, and are the foundation and almost the sole foundation of the so-called native breeds in all the American Latin republics, but the breed was not kept up, and consequently decayed even more rapidly than subsequently in Spain following the Napoleonic wars.

While Spain has the honor of having produced the most valuable single breed of sheep, bred for wool peculiarly suitable for clothing, the British islands have produced the greatest number of valuable breeds of sheep bred for wool suitable for all purposes, and even for the particular purpose for which Merino wool is best suited, but little inferior thereto. Of course in the mutton breeds Great Britain has always stood without a rival, but also in its long-wool breeds it is without rival in wool of this character. The British breeds are classified as long wool, short wool and mountain breeds. The long-wool breeds are the Leicester, Border Leicester, Cotswold, Lincoln, Kentish, Devon Longwool, South Devon, Wensleydale, and Roscommon.

The short-wool breeds—this class includes among others the famous mutton breeds—are the Oxford Down, Southdown, Shropshire, Hampshire Down, Suffolk, Ryeland, Somerset, and Dorset Horned.

The mountain breeds are the Cheviot, Blackfaced Mountain, Herdwick, Lonk, Dartmoor, Exmoor, Welsh Mountain, and Limestone.

All of these breeds are English except the Border Leicester, Cheviot, and Blackfaced, which are Scotch, the Welsh which belongs to Wales, and the Roscommon to Ireland.

The Leicester from an historical standpoint is the most important of the long-wool English sheep, and it was the great reputation of the wool of this breed that gave England in the past its prominent position as a wool-producing country. Most important of all, it is the Leicester blood which is the foundation of many of the other best English breeds and as such has extended itself over all the world. The wool is fine, white, and long-stapled.

The Lincoln is the largest and heaviest fleeced sheep. Many of the fleeces will weigh from 18 to 20 pounds, with a staple 20 inches in length. The Lincoln resembles the Cotswold, but has a less-pronounced tuft on the forehead and the wool is closer curled.

The wool of these sheep has a fine glistening appearance which has earned for it the name of "luster wool."

The Southdowns, Shropshire, Hampshire Downs, Oxford Downs, and Dorsets are among the better-known short-wool sheep. The Dorset staple is the shortest.

The Cheviot is the best known among the mountain breeds. The Cheviot is sometimes called a middle-wool sheep.

The French breeds best known are the Choletaise, which carry a good fleece, the Laza, a short, thick-set animal with long-fibered but rather scanty wool, the Berrichonne du Crevan, better known for its heavy milking qualities than for wool, and the Manchamp sheep, known as La Chamols, which produces a most excellent long and fine-fibered combing wool.

In addition to the domestic sheep introduced into America by the English, Spanish and Portuguese settlers, South America possesses a group of wool-bearing animals which are native to the country. This group, the auचना, is one of the two branches into which the existing genera of the family of the camelidae is divided. The other branch is the camel (camelus) of the Old World.

Most authorities agree in dividing the auचना into four species, the guanaco, the vicuña, the llama, and the alpaca. The two last named are not known in the wild state, but were domesticated by the native Indians long prior to the coming of the Spaniards to South America. There is no reason to doubt that the guanaco and the vicuña might also be brought under subjection.

The vicuña is a smaller animal, about the size of the fallow deer. It is found in the high mountains of Bolivia, Peru and Ecuador, seldom descending below 13,000 feet. Although it may be tamed, it is to all intents and purposes a wild animal. It yields an exceedingly fine and delicate wool of a reddish-yellow color, which is worth about twice as much as alpaca.

The alpaca was the wool-producing animal of the Incas, as it is yet of most of the people of the Andes and the west coast of South America. It is found principally in Peru and Bolivia, but does not thrive below about 5,000 feet.

All of the South American countries are producers of wool from the domestic sheep, and most of them are exporters to a greater or less degree; but the recent development of the sheep industry in Argentina, Uruguay, and Chile lends a particular interest to South America as a purveyor of this one of the world's staple articles of trade.

The annual wool clip of Argentina for the season of 1849-50 was 8,000,000 kilograms, 17,600,000 pounds. This was a respectable showing for the time and gave Argentina a position of importance in the wool trade. The wool, however, was a coarse grade, most of it what is known to the trade as Cordova, used by worsted spinners for carpet yarns. In 50 years the industry had increased thirtyfold so that the clip of the year 1899-1900 was 239,000,000 kilograms—525,800,000 pounds. This represented about one-fourth of the world's production. The quality of the wool meanwhile had improved.

A recent census of the country (1908) shows 67,211,754 sheep. It is almost impossible for the mind to grasp these figures, but some idea of their significance can be gained when it is stated that "If the animals were assembled in a gigantic drove, 12 abreast, they would reach across the continent from New York to San Francisco." This places Argentina second to Australia, which leads the world with over 83,100,000, the United States third, with about 66,000,000, and England fourth, with about 35,000,000.

The export of wool from Argentina for the year 1908 amounted to 386,188,000 pounds.

AT A CRITICAL PERIOD Of Peculiar Interest to Women

Mrs. Mary L. Remington, Elm St., Gilroy, Cal., says: "I suffered severely from pain and soreness in the kidneys—that it was a task to turn over. "I have no fear before these experimental dishes. He who has eaten in France learns to eat boldly."

"Think of the French cheeses alone! 'Why, one afternoon in a restaurant in the Boulevard des Italiens, I heard a guest shout angrily:

The Rude Visitor.
There is a story about the secretary of a golf club who was a man of diminutive stature. It was summer time, and the grass had been allowed to grow rather long. The secretary was playing in front of a visitor who was a very long driver, and kept dropping his ball in the neighborhood of the secretary all the way round. At last the little man could stand it no longer and walked back and remonstrated with the visitor on his conduct, but the only reply he got was: "If you would cut the grass, one might be able to see you."

A DOCTOR'S EXPERIENCE Medicine Not Needed in This Case.

It is hard to convince some people that coffee does them an injury! They lay their bad feelings to almost every cause but the true and unsuspected one.

But the doctor knows. His wide experience has proven to him that to some systems, coffee is an insidious poison that undermines the health.

Ask the doctor if coffee is the cause of constipation, stomach and nervous trouble.

"I have been a coffee drinker all my life. I am now 42 years old and when taken sick two years ago with nervous prostration, the doctor said that my nervous system was broken down and that I would have to give up coffee."

"I got so weak and shaky I could not work, and reading your advertisement of Postum, I asked my grocer if he had any of it. He said: 'Yes,' and that he used it in his family, and it was all it claimed to be."

"So I quit coffee and commenced to use Postum steadily and found in about two weeks' time I could sleep soundly at night and get up in the morning feeling fresh. In about two months I began to gain flesh. I weighed only 146 pounds when I commenced on Postum, and now I weigh 167 and feel better than I did at 20 years of age."

"I am working every day and sleep well at night. My two children were great coffee drinkers, but they have not drank any since Postum came into the house, and are far more healthy than they were before."

A whole week has gone by and no new abuse for Uncle Joe. It's up to somebody to get busy.

If the waterways graft is to be beaten in the end we must give credit where credit is due—Speaker Shurtleff.

In Iuka, the town that Mr. Holstlaw has put on the map, the Baptist Sunday school is still floundering without any rudder.

The warm weather seems to have warmed up the primary candidates. They certainly are getting busy all along the line.

Fish or cut bait. The fishermen along the Illinois river claim they had to go to Springfield to cut bait. Another blow to Deneen.

When Foss runs for governor who will run for congressman? But we refuse to borrow trouble at this stage of what may or may not be.

It seems the amount Voliva has offered for that part of Zion City worth while, is $900,000. What member of the legislature could do that?

Johnny comes marching home again, hurrah, hurrah, but in this case it isn't Johnny; it's Teddy and he is not marching, he is sailing the ocean blue.

Because Mr. Conn's chances look brightest in the 11th district for "congress," that doesn't mean that he is a "con" man, not by a long ways.

Up to the hour of going to press that lonesome man/over in Winnebago county who is going to run as a democratic candidate for governor has not been exposed.

Judge Grosscup has entered an opinion against a trust—the Pullman company. Is the Judge getting cold feet for this looks like spoiling his record as a friend of the "interests."

Talking about waterways why not have Lake Marie connected with Lake Michigan at Waukegan? Lake county would get some of the fun then anyway but we don't know what particular benefit.

What has become of that heavier than air contest that Waukegan was going to have? It looks from this distance that the $100 the "Sun" started off the contributions with had sunk the whole project.

Mr. "White" the statesman from down state is now surely earning every dollar he says he got. A victim of a cross examination by Attorney Forrest earns a hundred dollars a minute, and count the minutes in this case.

A boy dropped off from the blind baggage in Waukegan the other day believing it was Deadwood, the toughest city in America. Is this a reflection on Waukegan or merely on the boy's judgment. We are loth to blame the former.

Tell us the names of the candidates who are going to win in the Republican Lake county primaries and we will tell you the names of the ones who win in the election that comes later. There's a stunt for you—in a dream. A wooden Indian couldn't do less.

There is a story running in one of the magazines entitled, "The Light That Comes Too Late." Gov. Deneen has shown us with much nerve wracking that the light has come to him, as he thinks, but still with that refreshing innocence of his, he believes it is not too late.

Some people say that State's Attorney Dady is overlooking a chance to get into the Springfield legislative investigation by starting a little grand jury of his own. Nonsense, nobody in Lake county ever took a dollar they didn't earn by the sweat of their brow. But Dady ought to think it over.

They are going to have a "sane" Fourth of July celebration in Chicago the coming natal day. There are to be 1000 tableau floats in line. A pessimist has suggested that the first float in the procession should have Governor Deneen in the act of shedding tears while Roger Sullivan deals a "jack pot." But why turn a day of gayety into sorrow and sordidness.

Why have a cheap little fish scandal when the State Board of Equalization is allowed to sleep so peacefully nights. We believe it was Ed. Shurtleff that called attention to this angle some years since. As Mike Doolan of the 13th ward of Chicago once said, "All I want is one crack at that job." And no one thought of "the dear ones at home" more than Mike.

A newspaper in Kansas has been fined $100 for supporting two candidates for the same office at the same time. The court held to the biblical injunction that no one can serve two masters. We would suggest the Waukegan papers observe this and yet we deny any Lake county editor is the servant of anybody. We pick the best man for the job.

The Knockers

The easiest thing in the world is to be a knocker. You know them among your acquaintances, you know them among your friends. They knock on everything, the ordinary things of their daily life, the big things that only occur once in a while.

So it is in politics. We have the big fellows knocking because they are not it all the time. And then the chaps further down because, forsooth, they are not the big fellows themselves, either off or on.

This idea pervades national, state and local politics just now. Everybody who can't have his own way knocks.

That is what is effecting business, that is what is causing general distrust everywhere and in everything. We must snap out. Things are really no worse than they ever were. Because we are more particular to see that things are done right should give no one the blues.

If the legislative boodling at Springfield proves to be more than half true there is no occasion for hysterics. All honest business should proceed. The courts are sitting on the job and in the end justice will be done.

If this same honest business is worrying about President Taft and congress at Washington it is borrowing trouble. The tariff is settled for the time being, the railroad bill is practically fixed and the postal savings is about to be landed.

Outside of this there is nothing else doing and where can anybody, even the "interest" get a jolt from this?

More and more as time goes on is it demonstrated that President Taft was meant for more than private life. The things that are doing at Washington now are being done because he is back of the helm. The things that are being done are the best for us all, knockers notwithstanding.

To come closer at home with the knockers, we have got them right here in Lake county. Every man who is holding a county office by the votes of its people is being knocked. And why? Stop a minute and be sure he or they deserve it. The same thing is going on about all the candidates at the primaries who are to succeed the present incumbents. Isn't it the right way for you to pick out your choice and fight for him without knocking on everyone who has the temerity to come into the running? We believe it is unless there is something reprehensible in the other fellow. The men that are up for office in this county are mostly clean men and we need have no great worry.

If there are goats among the sheep the News will try and find them for you and before the day of the primaries has come will try and locate them for you.

Long Time Since Moving Day. Fulham palace, which peers among the trees of the public park on the river's edge, formerly part of the Episcopal gardens, has been the country house of the Bishop of London for eight hundred years.—London Saturday Review.

The One Great Influence. The heart is the key of this world, and of life. Through our very imperfections we are often more capable of influencing others, and this strange influence expounds the riddle of our existence.—Novalls.

A Larger Family. "Do you find the cost of living any higher than it was, say, five years ago?" "Yes, sir. Two of my daughters have got married since."

In Praise of Labor. By labor the earth has been subdued, and man redeemed from barbarism; nor has a single step in civilization been made without it. Labor is not only a necessity and a duty, but a blessing.—Smiles.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.
Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Rivington, N. Y. SLEW MUCH GAME IN JUNGLES OF AFRICA

Colonel Roosevelt Bagged Elephants, Lions and Many other Animals, Sending the Specimens to the Smithsonian Institution—Kermit the Expedition's Photographer.

Colonel Roosevelt added much to his fame as a hunter of big game during his 11 months in East Africa, and also sent a great number of valuable specimens of the fauna and flora of that region to the Smithsonian Institution, which partly financed the expedition. The individual expenses of Mr. Roosevelt and his son Kermit were paid by the former, who earned large sums by writing articles for a magazine descriptive of his experiences.

Not wasting much time after leaving the White House, Colonel Roosevelt sailed from New York on the steamship Hamburg, headed for Naples. With him were Kermit and three naturalists, Major Mearns, Edmund Heller and J. Alden Loring, and stowed in the hold was most of their elaborate outfit for killing or photographing the animals of East Africa and for preserving the specimens destined for the Smithsonian Institution. Kermit had trained himself to be the chief photographer of the expedition, but he also turned out to be considerable of a hunter.

A great throng of friends and admirers bade the colonel farewell, and he sailed away, but could not entirely separate himself from the world, for practically all the way across the Atlantic wireless communication with the Hamburg was maintained. Moreover, at the Azores, and again at Gibraltar, he found the officials and people insisted on doing him honor, and when he reached Naples on April 5 the entire populace turned out to greet him with flowers and cheers.

Boarding the German steamship Admiral for Mombasa, Mr. Roosevelt found in his cabin a quantity of flowers and a letter from Emperor William wishing him "good hunting." At Messina a stop was made to view the earthquake ruins, and there, at King Victor Emmanuel's request, Mr. Roosevelt and Kermit visited the Italian monarch on board the battleship Rex Umberto. The party arrived at Mombasa April 21 and was received by December 19, crossed Uganda and went down the White Nile, getting back to comparative civilization at Gondokoro. There they went aboard a steamer put at their disposal by the sirdar, and journeyed to Khartoum, where Mrs. Roosevelt met her husband, and accompanied him in a leisurely trip to Cairo. During his stay in Egypt Colonel Roosevelt was the recipient of many honors and made several speeches. One of them, in which he praised the administration of the British, gave considerable offense to the native Nationalists. At the end of March the Roosevelts sailed for Italy. In a preliminary report to the Smithsonian Institution Mr. Roosevelt summarized the material results of the expedition as follows:

"On the trip Mr. Heller has prepared 1,020 specimens of mammals, the majority of large size; Mr. Loring has prepared 3,163, and Doctor Mearns 714—a total of 4,897 mammals. Of birds, Doctor Mearns has prepared nearly 3,100, Mr. Loring 899, and Mr. Heller about fifty—a total of about 4,000 birds.

"Of reptiles and batrachians, Messrs. Mearns, Loring and Heller collected about 2,000.

"Of fishes, about 500 were collected. Doctor Mearns collected marine fishes near Mombasa, and fresh water fishes elsewhere in British East Africa, and he and Cunningham collected fishes in the White Nile.

"This makes, in all, of vertebrates: Mammals 4,897 Birds (about) 4,000 Reptiles and batrachians (about) 2,000 Fishes (about) 500

Total 11,397

"The invertebrates were collected chiefly by Doctor Mearns, with some assistance from Messrs. Cunningham and Kermit Roosevelt.

"A few marine shells were collected near Mombasa, and land and fresh-water shells throughout the regions visited, as well as crabs, beetles, millipedes, and other invertebrates.

"Several thousand plants were collected throughout the regions visited

FLIES LIKE A BIRD BROWNE FACES JURY

AVIATOR MAKES ROUND TRIP FROM NEW YORK TO PHILADELPHIA.

ALL RECORDS ARE SMASHED

Charles K. Hamilton Sends Biplane at Express Speed—Longest City-to-City Flight Ever Made—Makes Mile on 1:19 Average.

New York.—Charles K. Hamilton, the young aviator, made the most daring flight of his career Monday when he traveled from this city to Philadelphia, but on his return trip he experienced trouble with his motor and landed in a swamp near Perth Amboy, N. J.

A special train following him lost sight of the biplane a few minutes later at Menlo Park and there was no further news until the telegraph wires brought the brief report: "Hamilton stuck in the swamps at Perth Amboy."

Hamilton had landed on the south shore of the Raritan river, two miles above Perth Amboy. His descent was deliberate and he was not hurt, nor did it appear at first sight that his aeroplane was damaged. The fact is that Hamilton had made his journey from Governor's Island to Philadelphia with only seven cylinders working. The eighth cylinder went out of commission when he was 1,500 feet above the harbor. Nevertheless the first leg of the trip was a remarkable success.

Hamilton traveled the eighty-eight miles from Governor's Island to the aviation field at North Penn Junction in 1 hour and 50 minutes. He left Governor's Island at 7:36 and alighted at 9:26. At Philadelphia he stopped two hours and seven minutes for food, gasoline and oil, and, rising again at 11:33, hurried ahead of the special train, which had become tangled in the railway yards.

For thirty-five miles the train chased him at a speed sometimes reaching seventy-five miles an hour before it caught up with him, two miles beyond Princeton Junction, forty miles out.

Hamilton started from Governor's Island under the auspices of the New York Times and the Philadelphia Public Ledger. His propeller, broken in an attempted start twenty-five minutes earlier, was repaired quickly and the aviator made a graceful rise, circled the island and then cabled off over the Kill von Kull at a height of about 225 feet.

INTERIOR HEAD IS SCORED

Attorney Brandeis Declares Ballinger Is Menace to People's Interests and Is Not Trustworthy.

Washington.—The defense of Mr. Ballinger was that he was ignorant of the situation in Alaska, and that all the acts complained of were performed by subordinates, for whom he was not responsible.

"Such a defense is enough to condemn him. The evidence in the record and the conduct of Mr. Ballinger throw a strong light upon his character.

"No man with such a character would be trusted by an individual or private corporation with care of important property interests."

The above statements are part of a scathing attack on Secretary Ballinger and his conduct of the interior department filed Monday in a brief of Attorney L. D. Brandeis with the Ballinger-Pinchot committee. The brief prepared by Attorneys Brandeis, George Rublee and Joseph Cotton, Jr., is in behalf of Louis R. Glavis.

Other briefs were presented by Attorney George D. Pepper for Gifford Pinchot and by Attorney John J. Verrees for Secretary Ballinger.

TWENTY PERISH IN BLAZE

Herald Building at Montreal Burns—Bindery Girls and Others Are Dead in Ruins.

Montreal, Que.—Bodies of 20 bindery girls and linotype men are buried beneath tons of wrecked machinery and heavy debris in the basement of the Herald building, which was wrecked by fire Monday.

Thirty were hurt, several fatally. Many of the dead met their death in slow torture. Flames were steadily creeping down upon them as they lay helpless and as a rescue party was fighting near by to penetrate the building.

The victims were swept downward through the building by a huge water tank which plunged from roof to cellar.

Almost instantly there was an explosion of gas from several pipes which hung about the sides of the immense jagged hole.

Flames, fanned by a stiff wind were soon sweeping the upper floors of the building.

Scores of persons in the editorial and other departments had to fight for their lives through smoke.

Find Charlton's Coat in Lake.

Como, Italy.—A part of a man's coat, declared by some of his fishermen neighbors to have belonged to Porter Charlton, was found Monday in Lake Como, from the waters of which the body of his murdered bride, Mary Scott Castle Charlton, was recovered last Friday. The torn garment was fished up from the bottom of the lake, near the spot where the trunk containing the body of the woman was found. This discovery strengthens the theory of many that a double murder was committed.

TAKING OF TESTIMONY IN ALLEGED BRIBERY CASE.

WHITE ON WITNESS STAND

Name of Representative H. J. C. Beckemeyer Given Additional Prominence—Features of the Affair Up to Beginning of Trial.

Chicago.—The trial of Lee O'Neill Browne, charged with bribing state legislators to vote for William Lorimer for United States senator, began before Judge McSurely June 13.

Representative Charles A. White, chief witness against Browne, took the witness stand after the court had refused to instruct the jury to return a verdict of "not guilty."

The mysterious friend who was in the St. Nicholas hotel in Springfield the night that Representative Charles A. White says he was bribed by Lee O'Neill Browne in a bathroom in the hostelry was Representative H. J. C. Beckemeyer.

This sensational revelation was made by State's Attorney Wayman in his opening speech to the jury.

On objections of the defense Mr. Wayman was not permitted to refer in his opening address to the evidence of Representatives H. J. C. Beckemeyer and Michael Link, which would be offered in corroboration of White's. The meeting in St. Louis with Representative Robert E. Wilson and the "bathroom boys" proceedings in splitting up the "jack-pot" were barred from the opening statement.

White went on the stand after State's Attorney Wayman had concluded his address, the defense waiving its opening until later.

The salient features of the case up to the beginning of the trial were as follows:

Defendant—Lee O'Neill Browne, Democrat, minority leader.

District—Thirty-ninth.

Home—Ottawa.

Charge—Bribery.

Halts Rockefeller Church.

New York.—John D. Rockefeller probably will have to go to church for at least another year in the same old edifice which he has been attending here for so many years. Trustees of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church had expected to begin tearing down the old edifice this summer to make way for a new $500,000 church. Owing, however, to the illness of the pastor, Rev. Dr. C. F. Aked, who is now convalescing from an attack of typhoid fever, building plans have been temporarily abandoned.

SAVED OLD LADY'S HAIR

"My mother used to have a very bad humor on her head which the doctors called an eczema, and for it I had two different doctors. Her head was very sore and her hair nearly all fell out in spite of what they both did. One day her niece came in and they were speaking of how her hair was falling out and the doctors did it no good. She says, 'Aunt, why don't you try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment?' Mother did and they helped her. In six months' time the itching, burning and scaling of her head was over and her hair began growing. Today she feels much in debt to Cuticura Soap and Ointment for the fine head of hair she has for an old lady of seventy-four."

"My own case was an eczema in my feet. As soon as the cold weather came my feet would itch and burn and then they would crack open and bleed. Then I thought I would flee to my mother's friends, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I did for four or five winters, and now my feet are as smooth as any one's. Ellsworth Dunham, Hiram, Me., Sept. 30, 1909."

EUROPE DID HONOR TO FAMOUS AMERICAN

Rulers and People of Many Lands
Greeted Him as Most Distinguished Citizen of United States --- His Lectures in Three Cities.

All Europe, kings and commoners alike, received Theodore as the most distinguished of living Americans. He was entertained by royalty and nobility everywhere he went, and always the people greeted him with vociferous applause. What possibly pleased the former president more than all this was the fact that literary and scientific circles received him as a man of letters and science and several learned societies elected him to membership.

In Paris, Christiania, Berlin and Oxford Mr. Roosevelt delivered scholarly public addresses and the literary and scientific circles opened to let him in and marveled at the wide scope of his knowledge.

The event connected with Mr. Roosevelt's European tour that aroused the most interest and excitement occurred immediately after his arrival in Italy early in April. Before he left Africa his desire to pay his respects to the pope had been conveyed to the Vatican and the holy father had intimated that he would be glad to see the distinguished American. About the same time former Vice-President Fairbanks was in Rome and had arranged for an audience at the Vatican which was cancelled by the pope because Mr. Fairbanks first addressed the Methodist mission in Rome. When Colonel Roosevelt reached the Eternal City he received, through the American minister, a message from Cardinal Merry Val, papal secretary of state, to the effect that the pope would grant an audience to Mr. Roosevelt if he did not repeat the mistake made by Mr. Fairbanks. The colonel promptly called it all off, stating that as an independent American citizen he could not submit to such restrictions. The head of the Methodist mission tried to make religious capital out of this, and vied with each other in doing honor to the visitor, and for amusement he was taken to the field of aviation, where he saw some exciting aeroplane flights.

Traveling northward somewhat leisurely, by way of Brussels, Amsterdam and Copenhagen, Mr. Roosevelt arrived at Christiania and delivered an address on international peace before the Nobel prize commission, which had awarded to him the Nobel peace prize for his successful efforts to end the Russian-Japanese war.

Emperor William had made great plans for the entertainment of the ex-president in Berlin, but the death of King Edward caused the curtailment of its program to a considerable extent. Instead of being the Kaiser's guest in the palace, Mr. Roosevelt stopped at the American embassy, and though William received him and dined him and showed him the German army in maneuvers, the more spectacular and public features were omitted. On May 12 Mr. Roosevelt delivered at the University of Berlin an address on modern civilization which was highly praised for its scholarly qualities.

Having been appointed special ambassador of the United States to attend the funeral of King Edward, Colonel Roosevelt next crossed the channel to England, and when the body of the dead monarch was carried to the tomb he was one of the remarkable crowd of royal personages and distinguished men that followed the gun carriage on which Edward's coffin was borne. After the funeral he was received by King George and Queen Mary and by the widowed queen mother, and in a quiet way made necessary by the mourning of the nation much attention was shown him. This culminated, in London, by a reception in the Guild Hall, at which the free-

LAND IN CANADA AN INVESTMENT

WORK IT, AND SECURE 20 PER CENT. ON THE EXPENDITURE.

Farm lands in Canada increased in value this Spring from fifteen to twenty per cent, and as a result of this increase thousands of those who have gone there within the past few years have had that much more value added to their holdings. There is proof here that as a field for investment there is nowhere to be found a more profitable one than in purchasing farm lands in Canada. And, as a field for occupation and working, the farms there is nowhere on the continent where more satisfactory return is given. The crops are always sure and the prices are always good. With railroads entering and traversing all the settled parts, there are very few districts in which the farmer will be more than from ten to twelve miles from a railway station. Roads are good, and big loads are easily handled. The price of getting grain to the primary market is low on this account, and then in reaching the world's markets the railways have their rates controlled by the Government, and what may be considered a fair deal is certain. Good prices for all kinds of grain is the rule, and if the investor has made good money by the increased value given to his unworked land, it is not difficult to understand that the profit to the man who works his land is just that much more, and there will be no depreciation. The man who holds a free homestead of one hundred and sixty acres of land, which he got for $10 an acre, has land which at its lowest estimate is worth $10 an acre—yes, $15 an acre—the moment he has completed his three years' residence duties. It will continue to increase in value until its earning power gives a reasonable interest on a certain sum. That is, if he takes off the land fifteen to twenty dollars per acre clear profit each year, his land is worth to him, at a fair rate of interest, $200 an acre. If he only realizes $10 an acre clear profit, it is worth $100 per acre. Now, thousands of farmers are duplicating these figures. The price of land in Canada today is much less than its realizing value. The fact that the fifty thousand Americans who went to Canada year before last were followed by one hundred thousand last year offers some evidence, and good evidence, too, that there is getting to be a pretty fair knowledge that money is to be made in Canada lands. As an investment money is to be made, but more by living upon the land, secured either by homestead or purchase. The one hundred thousand of last year will be one hundred and fifty thousand this year. These comprise people from every state in the Union, and it is just being realized the asset that awaits the homesteeker in Canada. The large numbers that have gone, though, makes no appreciable difference in the supply of land. There is still left vast quantities of the best of it. But the longer a delay is made in arriving at a decision, the price will advance proportionately, and the more desirable homesteads near the railway lines become more difficult to secure. The Government publishes interesting literature, which may be had on application to any of the agents whose offices are located at different points through the States, and they (the agents) will be pleased to assist in any way possible in the choice of location.

A little miss riding on a Brooklyn trolley car the other day tendered the conductor half fare. "How old are you, little girl?" he queried, gingerly handling her fare.

She pursed her lips for a moment, then calmly opened her purse, dropped two more pennies into the conductor's extended palm, snapped her purse and demurely replied: "You have your fare, sir; my statistics are my own!"

COL. ROOSEVELT IN VENICE

Mr. Roosevelt thereupon canceled the plans for a general reception to which the Methodists had been invited. Thus, with his usual luck and facility for "coming out on top," he had the best of the matter all around and his conduct was generally commended all over the world.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt and Kermit

were received by the king and queen of Italy and spent some days in that country. The colonel and his wife visited Venice and traveled once again the Riviera route that they passed over on their honeymoon, and next Mr. Roosevelt visited Vienna and Budapest, where he was given a royal welcome.

Paris was next on his itinerary, and there on April 23 he lectured in the Sorbonne before a great audience of savants and students. The municipal, and its officials, the president of France and various learned societies dom of the city in a gold casket was presented to him.

He was the guest, thereafter, of several prominent Englishmen, and on June 7 he delivered the Romanesque lecture at Oxford, which had been postponed by the demise of the king. This was the most pretentious of all his European addresses and the best. His subject was "Biological Analogies in History."

The University of Cambridge honored Mr. Roosevelt by conferring upon him the degree of doctor of laws, and the occasion served to demonstrate his popularity with all classes. As Mr. Roosevelt accepted his diploma from the hands of Vice-Chancellor Mason, the students who crowded the galleries shouted "Teddy! Teddy!" and let down a large Teddy bear from the ceiling. The whole audience cheered and the colonel, as he passed out, smilingly patted the Teddy bear. Later that day Mr. Roosevelt addressed 700 graduates, on all kinds of topics.

On June 11 the traveler, together with Mrs. Roosevelt, Kermit and Miss Ethel, sailed on the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria on their way to New York and the rousing welcome that he knew was awaiting him from his fellow countrymen.

HENRY FORDCIE.

That Cart-Wheel Hat.

Matinee crowds were making their way homeward, relates the New York Globe. Into an already well-filled Broadway car came a fashionably attired young woman. Two women, already seated, pushed apart and managed to create a limited space between them—which they motioned to her to accept. She seated herself—or started to; then rose with a flushed face and an embarrassed air and seized a strap. "Wonder what's the trouble?" queried a male passenger of his neighbor. "You didn't notice it, eh?" was the response. "Well, you see both those women have cart-wheel hats. So has the other woman—and when she tried to sit down there simply wasn't room for the three wide-spreading hats all in a row."

A Woman's Great Idea

is how to make herself attractive. But without health, it is hard for her to be lovely in face, form or temper. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and wretched complexion. But electric bitters always prove a god-send to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate stomach, liver and kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion good health. Try them. 50c. at J. H. Swans.

Few, indeed, are fortunate. Happiness is a bird we pursue our life long without catching it.—Virey.

HIS PLATFORM

"I favor the economical expenditure of public monies and the immediate abolition of old time extravagant methods. I favor laws that will be beneficial for the farmers, dairymen and stock-raisers of this great commonwealth, the municipal control of gas, electric and water systems, the establishment of good roads and an economical system of expenditure for their permanent maintenance, convict labor to be used as far as possible. I favor the passage of laws that protect the members of fraternal insurance organization, against the encroachments of powerful old line insurance companies. In am opposed to any deep waterway legislation by this state until such time as the Federal Government assures its financial support of the project. I am for the rigid enforcement of laws governing the practice of medicine and surgery, and the enactment of such laws as will protect the people against unscrupulous practitioners. I believe there should be just and equitable measures of protection to employer and employee, the conservation of all our national resources, the encouragement, support and advancement of all our public, educational and charitable institutions, in order that they may be placed on the highest plane of efficiency."
